

Goals of a Liberal Education-Henry Rosovsky

- I. An educated person must be able to think and write clearly and effectively.
- II. An educated person should have a critical appreciation of the ways in which we gain knowledge and understanding.
- III. An educated person needs an understanding of other cultures and other times.
- IV. An educated person must have some understanding of, and experience in thinking about, moral and ethical questions.
- V. An educated person should have achieved depth in some field of knowledge.
